Jim Baker Retires From Postmaster Job

Jim Baker, Postmaster at Grayling since February 17, 1973, has retired after more than 38 years with the United States Postal Service

Baker retired Friday, November 21.
"I'm going to miss the people," said Baker. "I'm going to miss it all. It gets to be a way of life after a while."

"I've enjoyed the work. I wouldn't have stayed that long if I hadn't. I could have retired seven years ago if I had wanted to."

Baker first started with the Grayling Post Office as a sub-clerk/carrier in May, 1949, under Postmaster Jim McDonald.

In 1967, he became assistant to the Postmaster. Jim Post was Postmaster than in master. Jim Post was Postmaster then in 1967 (Post was Postmaster from 1950-72.) In June, 1972, Baker became Officer in Charge at the Grayling office and he took over as Postmaster in February, 1973. During his 38 years with the Grayling Post Office, Baker has been around for plenty of changes.

In 1949, the yearly revenue for the Grayling Post Office was $30,000. When Baker left in 1986 it was $513,000.

In 1949, the Grayling Post Office had one small rural route and a star route that ran from Grayling to Lovells to Lewiston and into Red Oak. In 1986, Grayling has five rural routes and Lewiston has its own post office.

In 1949, the Grayling office did its own dispatching and received mail throughout the day. In 1986, mail outside of the 497 and 496 areas are sorted elsewhere and all mail comes in the Grayling office in the morning.

Baker also was on hand for the adding of 102 post office boxes at the main Grayling office and the opening of the mini-mall office in 1983 where 324 boxes have been installed.

"I was a working Postmaster," said Baker. "I maintained the cash book and basically saw that everything was done." With Christmas season coming up, Baker won't miss the usual rush of holiday mail this year.

"I hardly ever got to spend the holidays with my family in 38 years," he said. "We would handle as many as 20,000 pieces of first class mail a day. When we used to get our mail by railroad, the Christmas parcels almost filled an entire freight car. Sometimes we would be up at 1 a.m. or 2 a.m. on Christmas Eve calling people on the telephone to see if they wanted to come down to pick up parcels that came in late. It didn't happen very often, but it did happen."

But the holiday rush wasn't as lopsided in Grayling as many people think, Baker said. "The summer could also run real heavy. With the National Guard, summer residents, and tourists, we could get real busy in the summer."

A real bane to mailmen is the multiple mailings.

"Bulk mailing can be a little tiresome," said Baker. "Especially to a rural route carrier. It gives him another bundle to work with and on some cold mornings when you have to pound the boxes to get them open, it can be bothersome."

Baker turned in a real iron performance at the Grayling Post Office. The last time he took sick leave was two hours for a dental appointment prior to 1970.

Before working at the Grayling office, Baker served in the Army Company C 61st Engineer Combat Battalion and spent 1943-44 in Europe. Baker, a demolition specialist, was part of the Normandy invasion and stayed until the end of fighting.

He went to Purdue University for a half year before he was drafted and he was graduated from Marion High School in Indiana.

He came to Grayling after the war because part of his family had moved here. See Postmaster Retires on Page 3

New Guard Units Push Camp Payroll Past *6 Million

Two new Michigan Army National Guard units assigned to Camp Grayling in 1987 could push the number of full-time positions there to close to 200 and increase the yearly payroll to more than $6 million.

Colonel Richard Schmidt, Camp Grayling Commander, said the new 745th Explosive Ordnance Detachment will have 10-12 guards in it and the new Company C, 446th Aviation Battalion will have 38-40 guards in it plus an additional 40-50 guards in the support unit.

Schmidt said it hasn't been determined yet how many of these positions will be full-time jobs.

Currently, there are 177 full-time state and federal employees at Camp Grayling, including M.A.T.E.S. and the Armory, said Schmidt. Additionally, there are about 43 seasonal positions.

The yearly payroll for all these positions plus the payroll for PX and club employees added to the drill pay for the five local units based at Camp Grayling amounted to about $6 million in 1985.

In addition to the payroll at Camp Grayling, a 1980 survey by the Grayling Chamber of Commerce indicated out-of-state guards training at Camp Grayling spend an average of $181 during their visit. A 1985 review of the economic benefits of the Michigan National Guard by the Office of the Adjutant General figured in the increase of the consumer price index and estimated 36,000 out-of-state guards spent $8,640,000 in the area during their standard two-week training period in 1984.

The survey of 361 Indiana and Ohio guards showed 45 percent travelled by private vehicle, 15 percent brought their families, only 8 percent returned home during the weekend, 16 percent used campgrounds or rental rooms, 76 percent patronized local restaurants, and 58 percent patronized local taverns.

There was no estimate in the study of what Michigan guards spend locally during their annual training.

Camp Grayling also puts money in the local economy through purchases of goods. In 1984, the Camp spent $207,200 in area purchases of goods.

Special projects, such as Operation Snowbird (a winter test of radar technology conducted by the U.S. Army and private contractors in 1983 and 1984), use Camp Grayling and more than $6 million was spent on the Snowbird project. Some of this money reaches the community through purchases.

Dial-A-Ride Finds Site for Facility

The Crawford County Transportation Authority is buying a site along North Down River Road for its new $508,605 facility.

The CCTA is buying 3.67 acres between Grayling Industries and Mobile Home Estates. The new site is located just north of a parcel of land that has been recently cleared along North Down River Road.

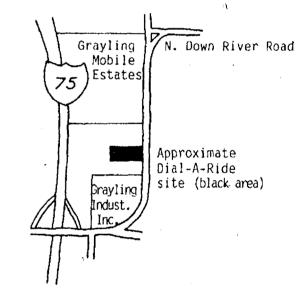

"It's a very workable site," said CCTA director David Frederick. "We expect no environmental problems with the site and it is already zoned industrial."

The CCTA is purchasing the site from Upsun Land Company for $24,000. Frederick said he expected the deal to be completed in a couple of weeks.

The CCTA board voted to purchase the North Down River Road property at a special meeting Wednesday, Nov. 19.

The CCTA is receiving $508,605 in federal and state grants for a new facility, but was without a site for a while. Their first choice, a parcel of county land near Scheer Motors, met opposition from nearby subdivision residents.

The money to buy the site will come from Dial-A-Ride's budget and no additional local taxes will be needed to build the new facility. The U.S. Department of Transportation is contributing $381,453 and the Michigan Department of Transportation is contributing $127,151. The only local money used will be for buying the site and possibly buying some equipment for the building.

buying some equipment for the building.

Preliminary plans call for a 10,000 to 12,480-square-foot building with 5-6 offices, a waiting room-lobby, and three repair bays with two lifts. The facility will be able to house 15 buses.

100 Percent Summer Tax Hearings Scheduled

Two public hearings on collecting 100 percent of school property taxes in the summer will be held Monday, Dec. 8, and Monday, Dec. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the GHS library.

The school district currently collects 50 percent of its taxes in the summer and 50 percent in the winter. The school board scheduled the public hearing to receive comments on a proposal to switch to 100 percent collection in the summer.

Superintendent Kent Reynolds said the school district is considering switching to 100 percent collection in the summer because it would eliminate cash flow problems in November and December that occur before winter taxes come in.

The school district could also benefit from interest earned on tax money if it was all collected in the summer. Reynolds said the school district could earn as much as $70,000 in interest and this money could be used toward reducing classes sizes or solving other problems.

Currently, most county taxpayers pay larger winter tax bills than summer tax bills. If the Crawford AuSable School District switched to 100 percent summer collection, most county residents would pay larger summer tax bills than winter tax bills.

If the school district switches, the new summer and winter tax breakdown would be this way:

Michelson Starts 'I Care' Program

By William Fraser

Forty-five workers were consecrated on November 2 by Rev. Jeff Regan as neighborhood leaders for the newly organized "I Care" neighborhood fellowship. Participating in the service, along with the pastor were Mrs. Betty Mansfield, coordinator of the program, George Morse, lay leader, and Rev. Bill Fraser, who initiated the program.

The parish is divided into 28 neighborhoods with trained leaders for each group. Persons were called to be leaders and then trained individually by Rev. Fraser. The chosen name "I Care" originated in a council on ministry meeting; it was commented that in a "caring church" everyone needs to assume the responsibility of deeply caring for one another. Consequently it was suggested that every member should make the matter of caring a personal experience and "I Care" was selected as the slogan for this new ministry.

The neighborhood leaders have a small handbook as a guide and will get continuous support from the key persons, sometimes by telephone or personal contact as deemed appropriate along the way. The pastor, the church office, along with the committee members will be involved to see that the needs of the entire congregation are met. Later in the program, some sharing meetings and an end of the year banquet will also be planned.

Lyle J. Baldwin, Administrator of the Grayling Moose Lodge # 1162, has announced that the Loyal Order of the Moose has joined the international effort against drug abuse.

The Supreme Lodge kicked-off the fraternity's "Just Say No To Drugs" campaign on November 15 at a Coordinator's meeting held at Mooseheart. The coordinators, representing 49 states and 4 provinces, will be assisting state and provincial Moose associations and Lodges.

Presiding over the meeting on behalf of Director General Paul O'Hollaren, who was ill, was Supreme Secretary Donald Ross. He told the 48 coordinators present that: "As a result of the July 30 conference with President Ronald Reagan and pursuant to his request, the Loyal Order of Moose has developed an international grass roots program to take the war on drugs directly to youths in the 2,300 communities where our for answers to the international drug abuse problem.

Grayling Moose Lodge #1162 will be participating in the campaign by helping in the selection of two neighborhood high school students within the high school district where the Lodge is located. Two students from each district will then be invited to attend a "Student Congress" to be held in a centralized city within Michigan on Jan. 3, 1987. The students attending the "Congress" will be asked to discuss the drug abuse problem and draft a list of recommendations for its solution.

One or two students from each state and provincial meeting will then be selected to attend an international "Student Congress" to be held at Mooseheart on Feb. 7, 1987. They will be called upon to draft a final report of recommendations concerning a solution to the drug abuse problem.

The international "Student Congress" will provide the opportunity to develop an international consensus on how to deal with drug abuse. Upon discussion and debate, the students will draft a final list of recommendations. Approximately four students from this session will be selected to attend and submit the final draft of recommendations in a report to a National Symposium on Voluntarism in Washington D.C. The symposium is organized by the Loyal Order of Moose and will be attended by 100 community, business, fraternal, service, and governmental organizations.

A copy of the students' report will be submitted to the White House.

The first year of a switchover would be the

Reagan really a lame duck now

by Richard Milliman

IT APPEARS THAT President Reagan is facing the biggest problem of his sixyear presidency so far, revolving around the United States role in selling arms of some sort to Iran.

From this vantage point out in mid-America, it appears Mr. Reagan may not be able to crawl far enough out of the hole he has dug for himself to have very much clout for his last two years in the White House. He's really a lame duck now.

Personally, I think it is both wrong and unwise to deal with Iran the way we did in the first place, and it's bad public policy to do it in secret in the second place.

I'll leave it to the experts in Washington and in the big-city media and networks to delve into the details of the situation; but to this interested private life viewer from afar, it appears Mr. Reagan is in deep

DURING MR. REAGAN'S televised "news conference" centering on the Iranian deal, he appears indefinite and befuddled. Perhaps more important, he appeared to me to be showing his age, for one of the first times I can recall. He looked old and tired.

This followed by about a week his first televised attempt to justify his Iranian actions. As a speech rather than a "news conference," this first televised explanation was more closely controlled by the White House communications experts. Still, to me Mr. Reagan - although looking to be in fine physical shape — yet offered what most charitably could be described as doubletalk and smokescreening.

The point is that if Mr. Reagan's actions and justifications are not finding favor with those who usually support what he does, then how are they coming across to those who are more casual in their concern, or those who are marginally hostile or downright opposed?

Plainly, Mr. Reagan is suffering believability problems, and credibility especially with the general public — has always been his primary asset in office... the ace-in-the-hole which helps him get things done.

After Iran, that credibility ace has lost considerable value.

A CASE IN POINT is represented by the comments of Sen. Richard Lugar, Indiana Republican, who until January still will be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations

From Washington Democrats and others usually critical of Mr. Reagan and all things Republican, you can expect such descriptions of the Iranian dealings as incredible, clumsy, amateurish and even illegal. But Mr. Lugar, usually a supporter of the president, especially in foreign relations, has joined the chorus.

Mr. Lugar has called the Iranian arms deal "a mistake," and advised that as long as Mr. Reagan refuses to admit error, he advisors. The administration needs "a more generous supply of good ideas and wise advice," Mr. Lugar says, and "some additional people who are perceived as big leaguers...barring that there will be problems all the time."

Democrats running the Senate, things will be different for Mr. Reagan: "There was a degree of protection for the president as long as Republicans had control of the Senate. Those shields are gone."

ON ANOTHER foreign affairs front, we have the case in Nicaragua of American Eugene Hasenfus, shot down, captured, charged, tried and found guilty of gun run-tion's conduct of the Iranian matter, and its penchant for secrecy and cloak-anddagger mystique, all may not be what it seems to be in the Hasenfus affair, either. (Just maybe Mr. Hasenfus really is an assistant secretary of state, out on secret will "probably prolong this agony."

Mr. Lugar also criticizes Mr. Reagan's

Sen. Lugar also cautions that with

And it looks as if Sen. Lugar personally has hauled away one of the steadiest of those sheilds.

Mr. Hasenfus has been sentenced to 30 years in prison. Some such disposition of his court case was a foregone conclusion once he fell into the hands of the Sandinistas who run things down in Nicaragua.

Somehow I feel little sympathy for Mr. Hasenfus. On the surface, he appears to be a downright soldier of fortune, with all the freebooting implications that term implies. He did what he did for his own reasons — generally thought to be thrills and money — and he knew what likely would happen if something went wrong. Well, something did go wrong, and what happened was bound to happen.

However, given the Reagan administraassignment. Who knows?

Contaminated Sites now at 1,539

Warren M. Hoyt, Exec. Dir., MPA

The state cannot draw even in an effort to clean up hazardous waste sites with a budget that has steadily declined to this year's $11.3 million while the number of identified sites is growing, this year up another 279 to 1,539, officials said recently.

Gary Klepper, chief of the site assessment unit of the Department of Natural Resources, said it would take over $4 billion in state, federal and private funds to clean up all the sites over a 20-year period, although a commitment of that size would probably require a state bond issue.

The new proposed priority list of hazardous sites is topped by the G and H landfill in Shelby Township (Macomb County), which contains a variety of suspected carcinogens such as solvents and PCB's threatening groundwater.

Klepper said the progress represented by the list is a more accurate assessment on the magnitude of the risk and dealing better with immediate health threats.

The growing list does not include more sites in the high-risk category, but is restricted more to "mid-range" risks, he

The proposed list, to be finalized following a series of public hearings, is to be used in conjunction with the governor's proposed 1987-88 budget proposals. "At the present rate, we cannot catch up. To really catch up, it will require a substantially greater investment than we have now," he said.

Only about the top 50 sites will get any remedial action in a given year, with clean up efforts begun only at one or two additional sites, Klepper said.

Besides the state program, Klepper said $30 million in federal Superfund money has been spent at state sites in 1983-85, involving another 20-25 sites. The state has 56 sites on the priority list for Superfund money, and another 10 have been proposed.

He said he could envision a state program big enough to deal with the problems if a bond issue were authorized similar to a $1 billion effort in New York state.

He added it would cost an estimated $4.1 billion to clean up the top 900 sites. A 20year program to address all the problems would require $240 million a year, or $80 million each from state, federal and private company sources.

Klepper said no site has yet been fully cleaned up in the four-year history of the state program, which began in 1983-84 with a $12.1 million budget.

The DNR official said about 170 sites of the 1,539 have been addressed in some way under the state program, ranging from interim responses which include fencing a site or providing alternative drinking water supplies, to actual clean up efforts to remove contaminated soil and purge polluted groundwater.

Groundwater is known to be contaminated at 1,028 sites and surface waters contaminated at 214. Seven counties (Wayne, Oakland, Ingham, Kent, Muskegon, Manistee and Grand Traverse) each have 50 or more sites.

Above ground and underground storage tanks each account for 20 percent of the sites on the state list, with the contamination source unknown at another 15 percent. The remaining sites have been contaminated by salt storage, agriculture or food production or manufacturing process-

1. Help each other be right, not wrong. People spend too much time discussing how they disagree. They are oriented that way. They should build on positive things. Instead of disagreeing, they should say, "I really like these few points that you have made and I'd like to add my three points to yours." When people add to each others' points of view they are building on each other and helping each other be right, not wrong.

2. Work for ways of making the new idea work, not for reasons they won't. 3. If in doubt, check it out.

If you have doubts about somebody, about their commitment or their integrity, check it our before you jump to a mental conciusion or repeat it. (Making negative assumptions about each other will cause you much trouble.)

5. Think positively about your place and each other at every opportunity and express your positive feelings.

6. Maintain a positive mental attitude, no matter what the circumstances are. The things that carry us to the edge of despair often turn out to be the seeds of renewal. For example, the money shortage in the health care field is making us smarten up and do some creative things.

7. Act with initiative and

Canoe Racers Excel Because of Conditioning

By Barb Fitzgerald

Their arms are in a constant front to back swinging motion, their legs stretching and striding as they glide across the snow-covered trails of backwoods Northern Michigan on crosscountry skis.

. These outdoor sports competitors are not crosscountry skiers-they are canoe racers in training.

Most paddlers train for canoe racing - typically a spring to summer sporting event - all year-round.

Canoe paddlers like Steve Landick, of E. Lansing, and Butch Stockton, of Higgins Lake, used to paddle in the winter but do not anymore.

It is better to do something else in the winter, but not with the same intensity as you would in the spring or summer, Landick said.

Landick, who took up cross-country skiing two years ago, said it is his primary way of training because the movement is so similar to paddling. Both cross-country skiing and canoe racing work the upper-body, the triceps, and the abdominal muscles. It's vital to have strong arm and back muscles for canoe racing. The powerful pulling action and alternating form of cross-country skiing is very similar to pulling the paddle and shoveling the water.

Although cross-country skiing is the most common way to train, other popular ways of training are weightlifting, running, rollerskating, and bicycling.

Bruce Barton, of Homer, said he keeps busy all year. In the fall he runs and lifts weights and in the winter he skis cross-country. He starts paddling about fifteen hours a week by the first of March.

cross-country ski team in the Grayling area, said he runs ten-kilometer races in the fall, enters cross-country ski races in the winter, and starts paddling in the spring.

Training during the off season is very important to a racer's performance during the summer training season and in the actual races.

Training during the spring and summer consists of some running and a lot of time on the water. Landick said summer workouts are harder because vou are working for quality canoeing and are spending more time on the water.

"Canoe racing requires time and technique," Lan-dick said. "You have to work very hard to find a technique. If training is done right you maximize your poten-

The type of canoe racing a paddler decides to do has some bearing on the type of training he should do. Stockton, five time first-place winner of the AuSable River International Canoe Marathon (ARICM), said when training for a marathon he trains for endurance, not for speed. He compares it to running because he puts in long hours. However, Landick said there tends to be too much stress on quanity and not enough on quality paddling.

"Paddlers have a tendency to paddle longer and should concentrate on shorter and harder sprints." Landick said.

Usually the paddlers who do better in the shorter races end up doing better in marathon races, too, he added.

Training for canoe racing season is taken very seriously. For racers like Landick, Stockton and Barton, it becomes a habit to train.

"I've been doing it for so long that it becomes part of an everyday thing," Barton said, "and if I don't I feel sluggish."

Training is just a way of life for Stockton.

"If I don't get out and do something I get ornery," he

"Most upper-Michigan racers ski to keep in shape," Landick said, "it's a good cardiovascular exercise."

Landick said training becomes a motivator to race for some racers.

Keeping in shape and eating a well-balanced diet are part of the training process for Barton and Landick. Landick said he tries to eat

Stockton, who is starting a the same ideal diet as the average person and watches his fat, cholesterol, and salt intake. Diet has not played a major role in Stockton's training program; however, he said that he is looking into it more and trying to pick up tips from other paddlers.

If you are really serious about racing your main goal is to be in shape.

"The better shape you are in the more fun you'll have," said Landick.

He added, the more physically fit you are and the more training you've had will help you adapt to any type of race and will decrease your chances of burn

Landick said knowing that your body is in shape and that you are prepared to race enables a racer to concentrate on his performance and increases his ability to go fast. For Landick, just going fast supersedes anything else, even winning.

Canoe racing requires a lot of time, energy, preparation, and hard work. But, those who are dedicated to racing do it because they enjoy canoeing.

The main thing that attracts Landick to canoe racing is the canoeing aspect of it.

"I like to canoe more than anything," Landick said.

Compared to other sports, Landick said, the natural environment on the river makes canoe racing special for him.

Barton is also attracted to canoe racing for the fact that it's an outdoor sport, and he enjoys the outdoors.

Most paddlers get into canoe racing when they are young. Landick has noticed that there has been less local participation in the ARICM in the last few years and encourages people to try the sport.

"Newcomers are needed," he said, "we need to find some way to encourage people to get out there and try it."

Landick encourages young racers like Ron Wyman, 18, of Grayling, Mich., who took second place in the amateur division of the 1986 ARICM his first year of canoe racing.

Senior Credits Program Created

State Senator Connie Binsfeld (R-Maple City) announced passage of a two-bill package that will create a Senior Credits program in the Office of Services to the Aging (OAS). The legislation, introduced by Senator Binsfeld last year, allows individuals 60 years of age and older to volunteer respite care service hours to other seniors, banking up to ten hours per week they, or their spouse, can draw on should they ever require similar services.

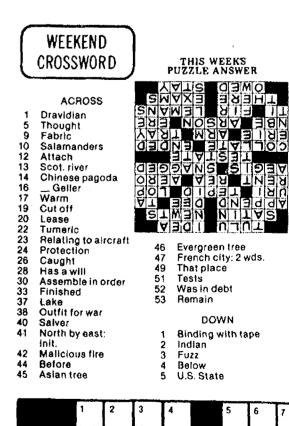

"This is a pilot program designed to take advantage of the skills and talents of many of our seniors while at the same time easing some of the pressure on our over burdened health care system," said Binsfeld. Binsfeld explained the program provides a volunteer pool of skilled individuals who volunteer time caring for homebound individuals while the primary care giver does some shopping, runs errands, or simply takes a break from the stress associated with constant care giving. Missouri and Florida have already passed similar legislation while several other states are in various stages of developing programs.

Organizing Can Help Make Holidays More Enjoyable

By Gail Edwards, Extension Home Economist

Christmas...all the warm. wonderful traditions, new experiences, friends and families getting together, special meals, parties, gifts, decorating, writing cards... sounds like a lot of work ahead! Attempting to carry on the family traditions each year, while adding some special activities for a new twist could be an exhausting experience - but it doesn't have to be. Learning to set priorities can help to make the holidays happier and less harried.

Start by listing all the activities you have always wanted to do, as well as the traditional ones. Next, group these into categories, such as "Most Important and Must Be Done," "Like To Do If There's Time," "Do, But Never Enjoy" and "Not Really Important." Rank the items in each list in order of importance.

After you have chosen your priorities, look at each selected activity and see whether you could do some of them ahead of time. Perhaps you could buy your write notes later, closer to the holiday. Is there room in your freezer for holiday baking? When can you start buying or making and wrapping gifts?

An extra big calendar for October, November, and December is handy for helping to organize your activities. You might make a note of when the dates and times of school or church programs the children will be in, and what time they need to start getting ready.

As needs related to your top priority activities arise, enter them on the calendar

Volunteers Meet for Senior Tea

Director and Lillian Wolf, School Volunteer Aide Coordinator, hosted a Seniors tea for RSVP members in the community on Thursday, Nov. 20th.

The program started with little sandwiches, munchies, holiday cookies and coffee, shared by all who attended. Then a video entitled, "Making the Lights Come On" was shown. This video is a 25-minute tape explaining school volunteering throughout different areas of the country, various ways of contributing time and talents, how businesses and organizations have become actively involved with their local schools, and how many talented artists and performers have shared their experience and knowledge with school children as volunteers.

After the film, Mrs. Wolf explained to the seniors how volunteer duties. The tea was offered to seniors to give them the opportunity to learn more about what volunteers are doing in our schools and also to give them the opportunity to ask questions about the program. Many of the seniors were surprised at the many different things they could do and how much enjoyment they could get back by spending time in our schools. #### Doodles From The Tall Timber

By Wendell L. Hoover Park Interpreter

As I understand the situation from those who should know, there are very few Indians living in this area, but it is a question I am frequently asked. This area, covered by big timber for the most part, was devoid of the big game animals such as deer, elk and moose that would have provided the protein needed by the people.

Another factor was the swift, gravelly nature of the streams in the area. While they were good for the native trout they could not provide the volume of meat that would have been necessary to supply the quantity of food needed to sustain any large numbers of people.

It was the poor soil quality and shortness of growing season that really hampered permanent habitation in the area, and any modern day gardener can affirm this.

The lack of soil quality meant that the three main food crops of squash, beans and corn could not grow well, but the lack of good soil meant that wild rice did not grow in the lakes in any great amounts. This wild grain common to shallow muddy shores was a staple food for the Indians. The rice contains almost 13 percent

Resource Review

Tom Opre, Outdoors Editor for the Detroit Free Press, has expressed some views that have not met with universal acceptance in this area. Recently, however, he has written his opinion on a contest to reward the person who kills the largest buck this deer season. His thoughts have merit. His feeling is that $25,000 is an awful lot of incentive for some folks to violate the law in quest of that deer.

The Department of Natural Resources has expressed a similar view. Hunting should not be competitive, rather it should be an opportunity for the hunter to meet his quarry at the level his skill or luck permits.

Taking the idea of competition among hunters one step further brings us to the tradition of "Buck Poles". Begun as an opportunity for hunters to show the result of their efforts, buck poles have now evolved into contests with prizes (or rewards) for the first, the biggest, etc. As these prizes become larger, the more incentive there is for someone to cheat to win. There is no doubt that some deer hung on buck poles early opening day were the result of something less than fair chase. Perhaps communities should take a look at this tradition and find a way to reduce the incentive to cheat that is inherent in many modern buck pole contests.

THE NEW AGE MOVEMENT

Secular Humanism merging with Eastern Mysticism is creating a new religious spirit bent on deifying man and ushering in the one world order of antichrist. This new movement claims "scientific" methodologies and is found today in Psycotherapy, Visualization, Meditation, Biofeedback, Positive Confession, Positive or Possibility Thinking, Hypnosis. Holistic medicine, and other self-improvement and success/motivation techni-

The New Age Movement is recognized more easily in the many success seminars dealing with "prosperity" "will-power psychology, building," and "highpressure" salesmanship. Success and a good selfimage are stressed. Humility and sin are out. Man is a little god who needs only to be developed into his full potential. These ideas promoted as scientific and neutral, are being accepted by many "christians" in churches as truth.

This uniting of Secular Humanism and Hindu/ Buddhist occultism was evident at the 22nd Annual Meeting of the Association for Humanistic Psychology held in Boston August 21-26, 1984. The daily schedule included "Early morning: Yoga, Tai Chi, Meditation." Many "PreConference/Post-Conference Institutes" included open sorcery with subjects like "Visualization and Healing...Trance States and Healing...operations of alchemy...guided imagery... Shāmmanie (witchcraft) Ectasy and Transformation...Being the Wizard We Are."

Occultist himself, and a leading occult authority and historian, Manly P. Hall has said, "...There is abundance evidence that in many forms of modern thought - especially the so-called "prosperity" psychology, "willpower building" metaphysics and systems of "high-pressure" salesmanship - black magic has merely passed through a metamorphosis, and although its name may be changed, its nature remains the same."

Both successful businessmen and christian leaders are recommending Napoleon Hill and other authors who advocate sorcerv. Churches are given over to the "Gospel of Success". The world's largest church claims 400,000 members. Paul Yonggi Cho, pastor of the church, teaches positive thinking, positive speaking, and positive visualizing as the keys of success. America's largest TV preacher Robert Schuller has built his ministry around "possibility thinking". Anything negative like sin or repentance is out. Schuller says, "I don't think anything has been done in the name of Christ and under the banner of Christianity that has proven more destructive to human personality and, hence, counterproductive to the evangelism enterprise than the often crude, uncouth, and unchristian strategy of attempting to make people aware of their lost and sinful condition."

TRANQUIL MINDS

There may be a tendency to confuse tranquility with the popular tranquilizers. There is, of course, a great difference.

Tranquilizers are sometimes prescribed to soothe a troubled mind or body; but tranquility of the mind comes through the calm peace that is realized when one's life is so attuned to God's will that there is neither time nor space to allow frustration and confusion to invade the inner spirit of the soul.

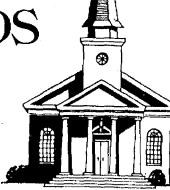

A tranquil mind is not an inactive one, and it is never a closed door, but rather an open door to more abundant blessings with an ever faithful assurance that God has even more blessings in store for us.

When we are at peace with our maker, we are capable of inviting tranquility to enter and live within us; we seek His will quietly with the knowledge that He never fails us.

Your church or synagogue offers an opportunity for this serenity.

1. Mary E. Harland, Chairperson of the Crawford County Board of Commissioners presented the Township Board with a request from Board of Commissioners to withdraw their petition for a zoning change (R-F to C-1) on property located in Sec. 6, T26N, R3W, and further described as parcel D on the Certificate of Survey recorded in Crawford County Register of Deeds office on Liber 163, Page 235. The petition was advertised as Case 86-6. Also, on file regarding the above described property is a petition opposing rezoning from R-F to C-1 signed by approximately 70 residents of North Park, Clough's Subdivision and surrounding areas.

Case 86-6 has not been scheduled for action by the Township Board as the County Planning Commission has thirty days to review the proposed rezoning. Copies of the property owners netition and letter withdrawing re-zoning request will be forwarded to both Township and County Planning Commissions.

· 2. Several property owners representing Shangri-La Subdivision approached the Board concerning improvements to the roads running through the subdivision. A petition for blacktopping was submitted in August of 1985. However, since these are private roads, the Road Commission and Township may not contribute monies to defray the cost of improving the roads. In addition, the cost of bringing the road up to the standards at which the Road Commission could designate them County Roads and maintain them is prohibitive and would require a

The residents are now researching the establishment of a Special Assessment District to improve the roads to acceptable grade and gravel standards and thereafter maintain said roads. The Road Commission was requested to contract with the subdivision through special assessment to improve and maintain the roads. No decision has been filed to date.

The property owners, considering the fact that a contract with the County would have low priority when snow removal was necessary, have compiled estimates from area contractors for improvements and maintenance and believe the project could be cost effective. They wish to proceed with the creation of a Special Assessment District.

The Supervisor advised the Shangri-La representatives that, since the original petition specified blacktopping, a new petition should be circulated.

The process to create a Special Assessment District is lengthy and requires a minimum of two public hearings. The exact improvements to be made must be known in order that bids may be let and accurate cost estimates received prior to proceeding further. A contractor should be sought who could accept payment in yearly installments over the length of the contract. It is unlikely the Township could pre-pay (loan) the improvements to private roads.

The Supervisor will research ways the Township may be able to help the petitioners find an adequate snow removal program

3. Regarding the Misty Way Special Assessment District, the Contract for Township Participation with the County Road Commission for blacktopping was signed this date (11-12-86). Work was started in 1986 and is to be completed in 1987.

4. Notification from C.F.C. Data Corp. that rates for computer property tax accounting will increase approximately 5% 1-

5. Motion by Ashton, supported by O'Mara, to refund Darlene Ososki $145.00 for Zoning Board of Appeals petition which was cancelled. Roll Call: Blaauw, aye; McLachlan, aye; O'Mara. aye; Ashton, aye; Stancil, aye, motion carried.

Motion by O'Mara, supported by Ashton, to ratify agreement between Gerald and Barbara Hebekeuser and Grayling Township regarding temporary residence in C-1 zone. All ayes, motion carried.

7. Motion by McLachlan, supported by Blaauw, to adopt Ordinance 86-3 (Case 86-2) to amend Grayling Township Zoning Ordinance 83-4, Section 10.2 (c), Section 11.2 (e) and Section 15.2 (c), to allow as a permitted principal use the storage of one temporary recreational structure on the rear of a lot containing a permanent dwelling with due regard to side and rear yard requirements for accessory buildings (Section 20.1, B-4). On lots with a duplex dwelling, one recreational structure per unit would be allowed. Ayes, five; nays, none, motion carried.

8. Motion by McLachlan, supported by Blaauw, to authorize transfer of administration of Township Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage to the Michigan Townships Association co-sponsored Municipal Health Services effective February 1, 1987. All ayes, motion carried.

9. Motion by McLachlan, supported by O'Mara, to appoint Donna O'Grady to the Grayling Township Compensation Commission. All ayes, motion carried.

10. Motion by McLachlan, supported by Blaauw, to continue agreement for snow removal from the compactor site with Ron Calkins. Roll call: McLachlan, aye; O'Mara, aye; Ashton, aye; Blaauw, aye; Stancil, aye, motion carried. DEPARTMENT REPORTS:

Planning Commission: Ashton reported the Commission met on October 28 & 29, 1986, hearing requests for three re-zonings and four conditional use requests. Two of the rezonings (86.7 & 8) were denied and one (Case 86-6) was forwarded to the County Planning Commission for review. Since that time it has become evident that there is considerable opposition to the rezoning (Item 1, p:2) which was not known the night of the hearing. The situation appears close to being resolved as evidenced by the letter withdrawing the re-zoning request filed earlier this evening

(Item 1, p. 1). Crawford County Transportation Authority Board: O'Mara eported that the C.C.T.A. had offered to purchase property in Sec. 6, T26N, R3W, (Item 1) for the proposed Dial-A-Ride storage, maintenance and office facility. However, rezoning of the site has been met with much opposition from nearby residential property owners. Two alternate sites are being considered. ## Grayling Man Sails The Seas Aboard The Bounty

Editor's Note: The following is a letter from Grayling resident Pete Funck passed on to the Avalanche by Kitty (Funck) Lorensen, of Charlotte, North Carolina. Pete is working aboard the Bounty, which was originally built for the filming of the movie "The Bounty." The ship, owned by Ted Turner and MGM, has logged more than 50,000 miles of ocean travel since 1960 and is a historical attraction currently docked in Florida.

Friends,

I'm sitting on a fourlegged stool, wearing a three-cornered hat trying to make my two fingers and my one poor aching brain convey to all of you the wonderment that surrounds me -I'm not sure we're up to it.

The room I sit in is six feet wide by eight feet long (no. I'm not in jail). To my right, along one bulkhead (wall) is a bunk which takes up half the cabin. Behind me is a sea chest which contains my library, a pair of cameras, and my binoculars. Next to the sea chest is a bucket which has many uses. Right now it's full of rope...is has, at other times, been set to less wholesome purposes. Before me is a very small desk which contains a rather incredible collection of miscellaneous gadgets, hilhickies, and whatnots; it also currently supports a typewriter which is very nearly larger than it is. To my left is a pair of curtains which provide some small amount of privacy in least private living arrangements ever devised by man. Transmitted through the 'tween deck beneath my feet, up through the stool on which I sit, comes the vibration of a caterpillar diesel which is turning a sixty kilowatt generator. This makes the small light on the wall, this typewriter, and a hundred other modern devices run in contrast to this wonderful anachronism that is my home — a ship, Bounty by name, one hundred and sixty nine feet overall, five hundred tons, thirty-foot beam, one hundred three feet from the deck to the top of the mainmast.

She wears three masts square rigged all - a full rigged ship from two hundred years ago ... or so it would seem unless you can feel the vibration below and know that soon you have to go down the hole and see how much oil the generator has thrown and check the bilge pump - now run by Reddy Kilowatt instead of four lusty lads. And next to the leaky diesel is another just like it enjoying a rest due to a leaky water pump. Forward of each of these are even larger diesels which turn sixty-inch props, providing us with the iron wind when Mother Nature is being difficult.

Surrounding these four caterpillars is an incredible array of pipes and wired punctuated with valves and boxes and fittings...all painted various colors so that one can tell what they are for. No one knows what many of them are for ... or if they do, they aren't talking. This is my domain and responsibility - a traveling junk show of antiquated equipment which I hold together with binder twine, electrician's tape, and luck.

I'm supposed to be the assistant engineer here, but the chief engineer is also the first mate and didn't want the job anyhow, so it sort of what is otherwise one of the falls to me to try to hold things together. Sometimes I even do. We used to have a real chief engineer, but he abandoned us in Washington (for pastures greener, no doubt).

The name on the door to my cabin says "Fletcher Christian." That's not my name, but sometimes it seems appropriate. There is one other furnishing that I have not mentioned. Between the desk and the bunk is an elliptical mirror. Often I stand before it and whisper to it, "Mirror, mirror, on the wall, what is the meaning of it all?" As yet, I have received no reply but it doesn't matter, for, as you can see, my life is a fairy tale and we haven't come to the end yet. · How it came to be that I find myself in the middle of a fairy tale, I can't quite remember. I do remember a curious intuition - a realization that my life needed to get either crazier or more normal, but then my fairy godmother sent me this pumpkin that kept growing and growing and sprouted wings and soon all that was normal began to dissolve into a bad dream - not quite in a puff of smoke - more like a Nova Scotian trawler drifting into a fog bank. And when the fog cleared, here I was - semi-Chief Engineer and Ship's Surgeon on Ted Turner's version of a traveling galactic sideshow and

I have no idea what will happen next. There are rumors afloat about going to Cuba (that never-never land of Capitalism); there are other rumors about going to Orleans (Creole Camelot). All I'm sure of is that we are now in Miami. parked in the middle of Vagabond Park where humanoid zombies compete with foot-long rats for the contents of garbage cans and make an evening's stroll anadventure. People only speak English here under duress: the lingua franca of this particular fairyland is medicine tent.

The chief business of Miami is snow - though no one skis. Some people bring it in; some take it out. People in blue outfits chase the people who are taking it in and out, while bankers do their laundry and everywhere lawyers ply their trade trying to keep the whole system running. Chinese and Koreans sell wonderful small electronic devices to all the players who are making handsome profits. Who says capitalism doesn't work? Who says there is no Santa Claus? Who says there aren't any fairy

One of the more interesting features of this particular fairy tale is the peculiar assortment of nuts and weirdos who are attracted, as if by magnetism or centripetal force, to whichever particular locus of space we happen to be occupying at the tales left?

Just last evening we had a visit from one of the original crew of Bounty. He shipped aboard at Panama when they transited the Canal bound for Tahiti. He'd been a beach burn and budding tattoo artist when the chance for free room and board and an adventure presented itself. He had a dozen tattoos, each with a story or two...and many dozen other stories with no tattoo to go with them. He still carried a scrapbook with pictures of himself and Bounty which were taken during the filming of the movie. He told us of the many foul-ups and miscalculations which happened during the filming, and showed us a faded picture of himself with the native girl whom Brando ultimately married. He drank rum & sang a song in Tahitian and went aloft with us to furl the main course...

and if he wasn't too much help aloft, he was a wonderment of entertainment on deck. He finally just sort of faded away into the night like some misplaced ghost of days gone by. I looked for his boat this morning to say good-by, but it was gone too.

Most everyplace we go, some ancient spector or other will appear, clutching to its breast a sheaf of papers and correspondence proving, after ten years' diligent research, that Bly was really a wonderful person much maligned by history; or that he was the very devil; or that it was really Fletcher Christian's brother who shipped aboard under his brother's name; or that Fletcher returned England and became a purveyor wealthy widgets.

And they all tell their story with immense sincerity and with the look of those who've seen a glimpse of the holy grail or touched a piece of the true cross. And someone always listens politely and someone always snickers and they all eventually fade away, leaving behind some small remembrance - a chart or a letter, or something in the air like the ozone that lingers in the wake of a

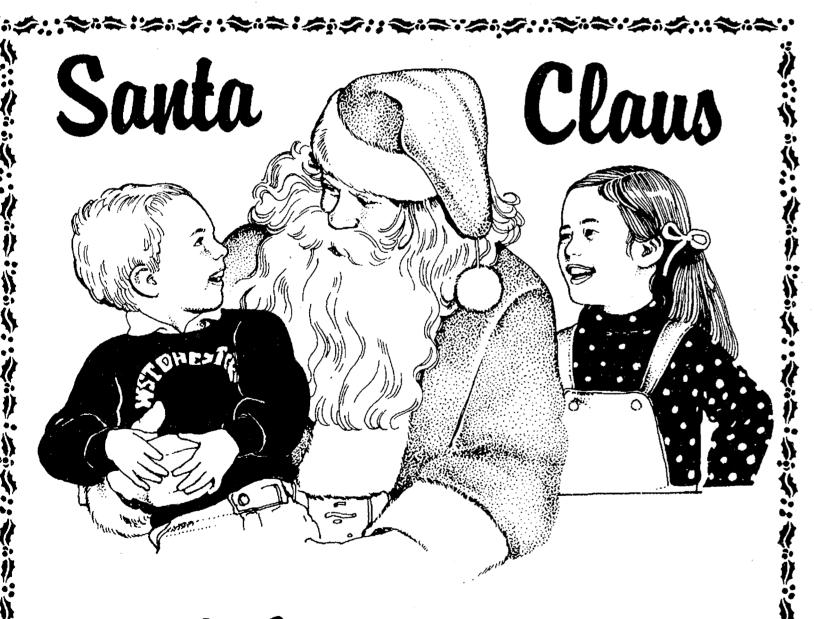

And then we, too, disappear like all the other spectors - back to the sea, where we can breathe again and it makes a difference where the wind is from, and what the barometer is doing, and the stars (that were obscured by city lights and the exhaust of a hundred thousand automobiles) appear again. Well, that's not the end of the tale, but it's just about 🥌 the end of this letter, if one can call this a letter. There should be more later wherever and whenever inspiration strikes and I'm able to hijack a typewriter.

Until I can return briefly to the Frozen North and be able to connect and tell lies in person instead of from a thousand miles away...keep 🥏 your dunnage dry and don't spit to windward.
